1. Guests were invited to the celebration with invitations from Wedding Paper Divas' "Stylish Starfish" collection. The heavy textured cardstock featured ecru-colored scrollwork and tangerine starfish. 2. Inna wore ivory satin peep-toe shoes accented with a side ruffle and glistening beads, which matched her trumpet-style Marisa gown flawlessly. 3. After seeing each other for the first time, which was Inna and Daniel's favorite memory of the day, the couple signed the ketubah (Jewish marriage certificate) and proceeded with the gazebo ceremony. 4. As the sun was setting, the couple exchanged vows and participated in a unity sand ceremony surrounded by their closest family and friends. 5. Low centerpieces of lush blooms, candles, antique table number frames, and custom "thank you" stationery completed each tablescapes design. 6. Starfish escort cards informed guests of their table number. 7. Matt and Jonathan of Del Sol Photography captured the day's events in a photojournalistic style. "Not only is Del Sol's reputation outstanding, but their work speaks for itself. We were both absolutely amazed while looking through their recent work," commented Inna. 8. From the warm lighting and spectacular surroundings of the resort to the ivory silk organza draping and three-column backdrop made of tangerine rose petals placed behind the sweetheart table, the poolside reception was decorated beautifully. 9. Chocolate and raspberry mille feuille was served for dessert, along with the two-tiered almond wedding cake with fresh berry filling.

When Inna and Daniel began planning their March 31, 2012 destination wedding, they knew they wanted a celebration that would encompass love, romance, and fun, among the most important people in their lives. Amid a pristine Caribbean locale, combining world-class service, luxurious amenities, and spectacular views, guests gathered at Paradisus Playa del Carmen for a celebration of a lifetime.

About five months prior to the wedding, Inna spent October 20, 2011 in New York City to attend several business meetings. Upon arriving home, she was greeted with romantic candles that led from the front door to the living room, where Daniel was waiting on bended knee. She immediately began crying, threw her arms around him, and said "yes!" While the proposal was happening, Inna's parents and sister were outside witnessing this wonderful occasion. "Words cannot explain the joy and happiness my parents felt in being able to share this very special moment with us. What a special gift Daniel gave my parents and me, and I will thank him for this forever," Inna reminisced.
